Paper IV: Option (i) Field Project

Objective: Women's studies cannot be limited to the classroom. The students can be aware of the realities only if they go into the field and interact with society and the people. Further, the students must be trained not only in the theoretical aspects of research methodology, but in the practical aspects through actually carrying out a small field based study. It is with this objective that a compulsory paper on project work has been conceived.

The students will be required to take up a small empirical study in which they will be required to submit a written report of about 40-50 typed pages.
The framework of the Report shall be as follows:

- Title Page containing name of project, name of candidate and name of supervisor
- Table of contents
- Introductory Chapter consisting of statement of the problem, review of literature (minimum of 7 books/ articles), Research Questions/ hypothesis, Objectives and Methodology
- 2-3 main chapters
- Concluding chapter presenting the conclusions arrived at from the study
- Select Bibliography
- Annexure

The broad areas for research would be:

- Women in Unorganised Sector
- Violence Against Women
- Women and Empowerment
- Women and Politics
- Women and Development
- Women and Globalisation

- Dalit Women
- Women's Movements
- Women and Media
- Women and Health
- Women and Work

(These are only some of the identified areas. Students can choose from other areas also.)

Supervisor

For the purpose of conducting Project Work, the students shall be required to work under a Supervisor appointed from within the Departmental Faculty by the Academic Committee of the Department.

Note for Evaluation: The candidate will be assessed for 60 marks on the basis of the written report and for 40 marks on the basis of a viva voce examination.

Board of Examiners for Evaluation (including written Report and viva voce)

The Board of Examiners shall consist of:

a) One Faculty member of the Dept-cum Centre for Women's Studies nominated by the Departmental Academic Committee

Option (iii) Training in Practical skills

Objective: Women's studies, by its very nature, cannot be confined to the ivory tower of classrooms alone. Skill oriented training is an absolute necessity. This course aims to develop various practical skills, so that the students can play an effective role in policy making and the society, particularly at the grassroots.

This will include training in gender analysis and planning, advocacy and lobbying. It will be evaluated on the basis of practical work done by the students, of which she/he will be required to submit a written report.

Option (iv): Women, Science and Technology Time: 3 Hours

Objectives: This course investigates the ways in which issues regarding science and technology intersect with gender. It aims to understand the historical and contemporary interrelationships among women, gender, science, and technology. Many kinds of questions can be asked about gender and science: questions regarding the social context of science with respect to gender issues; questions regarding the historical development of science and how the changing roles of women in society have affected science; and questions regarding the epistemological and ethical implications of these changing relationships. Likewise in the field of technology it examines issues such as: What does a feminist analysis of information technology look like? How has information technology affected women and girls? What role have women played in the development of technology, and how has technological change affected the roles of women, and the ideas of gender?
