ESSENTIAL COMPONENTS OF COURSE OF B.Voc (Media & Entertainment)

PROGRAMME OUTCOMES

PO1: Students will develop foundational skills in television, radio, print and digital journalism, enabling them to conceptualise, script, produce and present content across diverse media platforms.

PO2: Students will acquire practical proficiency in newsroom operations—news gathering, reporting, editing, anchoring, production control room functioning and multi-camera production.

PO3: Students will build strong competencies in writing for media, including news writing, scriptwriting, feature writing, advertising copy, PR content and research-based communication.

PO4: Students will demonstrate creativity and analytical ability in film appreciation, documentary production, OTT content creation, folk media and theatre performance.

PO5: Students will understand and apply major communication theories, media models and sociological perspectives to analyse media behaviour, audience engagement and cultural impact.

PO6: Students will be able to evaluate and apply media laws, ethics, regulatory frameworks, censorship guidelines and digital media policies in their professional work.

PO7: Students will acquire skills in digital media production, including social media management, mobile journalism, online journalism, podcasting, SEO and e-content development.

PO8: Students will develop entrepreneurial skills and gain insights into media management, advertising agencies, PR agencies and freelance journalism to explore independent and organisational career paths.

PO9: Students will learn to design, execute and analyse media research, including audience studies, content analysis and mixed-method approaches used in media industries.

PO10: Students will gain hands-on training through practical work, internships and industry-based projects, enabling them to apply classroom learning to real-world media environments.

PO11: Students will develop the ability to design persuasive advertising, development communication and public relations campaigns aimed at social, corporate and governmental objectives.

PO12: Students will nurture essential soft skills—communication, teamwork, leadership, critical thinking and professional ethics—required for success in the media and entertainment industry.
