MAHISDSE- 5 (C): ISLAMIC TRADITIONS IN MEDIEVAL INDIA

Credits: 4
Theory Examination: 80
Internal Assessment: 20

Course Objectives: This paper places the Islamic traditions of medieval India in the larger context of the rise of Islam in West Asia. Apart from the theological and mystical dimensions of Islam in medieval India, it highlights the emergence of the popular syncretic culture that grew around the major Sufi shrines. It also seeks to study the process of Islamization in two regions viz. Punjab and Bengal. This paper assumes significance in the light of the crisis that seems to afflict Islamic societies in different parts of the world, besides serving as an intellectual response to the growing misunderstanding regarding Islam and its historical role.

Pedagogy: The teaching of this paper is based on the pioneering works of stalwarts like Khaliq Ahmad Nizami and Saiyid Athar Abbas Rizvi. In a large measure, it relies on the contributions of Richard M. Eaton, which have fundamentally changed our understanding of the subject. While discarding monolithic explanations and unscientific stereotypes, this paper opens the mind to a complex and multi-layered past.

Note: The candidate will be evaluated on the basis of a written examination (80 marks) and Internal Continuous Assessment (20 marks). In the written examination, the question paper will have the following format:

MAHISDSE-5 (J): DOMESTICATION AND GENDER IN MEDIEVAL PUNJABI DEVOTIONAL LITERATURE

Credits: 4
Theory Examination: 80
Internal Assessment: 20

Course Objective: This paper examines the construction, negotiation, and subversion of gender roles within medieval Panjabi devotional traditions, particularly Sikh, Bhakti, and Sufi literary cultures. It interrogates how "domestication" functioned both as a disciplinary structure-regulating women's bodies, labour, and speech- and as a symbolic resource through which devotional poets articulated spiritual agency, ethical authority, and resistance. By reading women's voices alongside male-authored devotional texts, the course foregrounds domestic labour, marriage, widowhood, and household ethics as key sites of gendered meaning in medieval Panjab.

Pedagogy: The course is based on classroom lectures and tutorial discussions.

Learning Outcomes

1. Critically analyse gendered constructions of domesticity in medieval Punjabi devotional texts.
2. Distinguish between symbolic and lived representations of women in Bhakti and Sufi traditions.
3. Assess the limits and possibilities of spiritual egalitarianism within patriarchal social orders.
4. Apply feminist and cultural-historical frameworks to pre-modern literary traditions
