FIELD WORK/PRACTICUM

Supervised field visit/field work practicum shall be an integral part of this training programme to enable the students to integrate the knowledge acquired in the classroom with actual practice. Every student shall be required to put in 16 hours of field work, spread over two days a week, concurrently during two years academic programme, spread over four semesters. All the students shall be required to submit field-work/practicum reports every week to the field supervisor on designated time. For all reports submitted late or not submitted, marks shall be deducted accordingly.

A variety of learning opportunities shall be made available to the students during the field work/practicum (i) to develop their ability to observe and analyse social realities (ii) to appreciate individual's, group's or society's response to people's needs and problems (iii) to develop critical understanding of the application of legislation and social policy (iv) to develop the ability to recognize the need for newer programmes (v) to develop the capacity for self-direction, growth and change through self-awareness and (vi) to enhance writing skills to document practice appropriately. To meet these objectives the following field work/practicum opportunities shall be provided:

I. Observation/Orientation Visits
II. Concurrent Field Work
III. Individual/Group Conferences
IV. Rural Camp
V. Workshops
VI. Internship Program and Block Field Placement
VII. Training programmes
VIII. Seminars/Conferences etc.

- Observation/Orientation Visits:

Observation visits shall be arranged for providing an exposure to and understanding of the services provided in response to people's needs. Emphasis shall be laid on acquiring skills of systematic observation, developing a spirit of inquiry, appreciating the services provided, understanding the policy and its relevance, and identifying the gaps in the service system.

- Concurrent Field Work:

Concurrent field work emphasises on learning skills which revolve around a specific task where cause effect relationships are understood. Generally, persons have problems but they are more victims of their own circumstances. The major emphasis of concurrent field work is on practising all the primary and secondary methods of social work. It is also a calculative mechanism to provide students a platform to practice social work methods tools and techniques in an open community as well as closed agencies.

- Individual/Group Conferences:

The structured experiences during the conferences shall provide the opportunity of learning by doing in a safe environment of the classroom. This classroom environment, wherein the students and facilitators meet to experience certain intervention skills, shall be the most non-threatening methods of learning especially for the beginners. Learning opportunity shall be conducted through a game/form, or other simulated experiences with a view to help the students to enhance their self-awareness (own strengths and limitations) in relationship to professional role and to understand non- verbal messages-body language, empathy and life skills.

❖ Rural Camp:

Rural camp is a compulsory part of Field Work training just like concurrent fieldwork, internship and block placement. Camp in the slums/rural areas shall provide opportunities to experience living conditions – housing, water supply, sanitation, and other amenities – in addition to the social, economic, educational and political life of the people. Students will develop understanding of the governmental and developmental services in the context of emerging social realities. This experience shall help the students in acquiring skills in planning, organizing, implementing the camp for conscious use of time, communication skills, team spirit, handling relationships, conflicts, differences of opinions, evaluation, sharing of resources, coping skills in problem situations, cooperation and coordination.

If any student cites any reason (physical, medical, social, family etc.) for exemption from the Rural Camp he/she would follow the guidelines laid below:

- 03 weeks (21 days) of extra Field Work along with concurrent Field Work Internship/Block Placement.
- No expenses will be borne by the department as per previous practice.
- The marks allocated for the Rural Camp shall be detained of such students for this substitution. The students shall not claim for any marks for the same even after fulfilling the mandatory condition of doing 3 weeks of Field Work in lieu of the Rural Camp.
- If the candidate fails to fulfil this condition, then his/her conferment of degree shall be withheld.

The decision of choosing the venue, organisation, community and dates for the rural camp is entirely the decision of the department itself.

❖ Workshops/Seminars/Conferences:

Workshops shall be organized to help the students acquire specific skills for situations encountered during practice and acquire skills for intervention. These may be for problems, issues or concerns like First AID, Menstrual Hygiene Management, Animal Welfare, Work with Alcoholics and their Families, Couples undergoing Marital Stress, Elderly, Adolescents, HIV/AIDS affected Persons, Disabled Persons etc.

❖ Internship Program and Block Field Placement:

Soon after the completion of II & IV semester theory examination respectively, all students shall be required to work for six weeks and four weeks respectively, continuously in specific agencies/organizations of their choice or as may be assigned. It is compulsory for each student to submit a certificate indicating satisfactory completion of Internship Program and Block Field Placement, attendance sheet and all other necessary documents from the agency/organization the student has worked with, to become eligible for obtaining the degree of Master of Social Work.

*All reports submitted after the submission date will not be marked/evaluated and marks will be deducted accordingly.

The Field Work viva-voce examination will be conducted by an external examiner from the discipline of Social Work only and is from any other educational institute. The external examiner will be paid as per his or her designation keeping in the view the Panjab University rules and regulations from the field work society and all the expenses of his/her boarding and lodging shall be borne from the field work society itself. The external examiner could be of respective designations – Assistant Professor, Associate Professor and Professor.

Discipline Specific Core	45 hours (3 hours a week for 15 weeks = 01 semester)	1 hour	0	4	100 Marks Theory 80 marks + Internal Assessment 20 marks	03 Hours

Objectives of the Paper

This paper aims to help students understand gender as a social construct and analyze how social institutions shape gender inequalities. It introduces feminist theories, contemporary gender issues, women's movements, and gender-related legislations and policies. The course also sensitizes students to gender-based discrimination and prepares them to promote gender equality and social justice in social work practice.

Pedagogy of the Course Work

The course will be taught through interactive lectures, seminars, case studies, group discussions, role plays, and experiential learning. ICT tools, documentaries, and webinars will support blended learning. Assignments, reflective journals, and presentations will be used for continuous assessment and skill development.

Course Outcomes (COs)

Students will be able to explain gender concepts and feminist perspectives, analyze gender issues and family dynamics, and apply counselling and intervention techniques in practice. They will interpret gender-related legislations and policies and evaluate gender justice mechanisms. Students will also demonstrate professional roles and ethical commitment towards gender equality and social justice.

Learning Outcomes: This course integrates theoretical knowledge, professional skills, ethical values, and critical thinking competencies to prepare students for gender-sensitive social work practice. It enhances students' understanding of gender inequality, family dynamics, and legal frameworks and equips them to design and implement interventions for gender justice and family welfare. The course also prepares students for research, policy advocacy, and advanced studies in gender, social welfare, and human development.

Objectives of the Paper

This paper aims to enable students to develop a comprehensive understanding of Social Welfare Administration as a secondary method of social work practice. It seeks to familiarize students with the functioning of government and voluntary organizations at various levels, administrative structures and processes, social policy frameworks, and resource mobilization mechanisms, thereby preparing them for effective administrative roles in social welfare organizations and programmes.

Pedagogy of the Course Work

The course will be taught through lectures, classroom discussions, case studies, group presentations, policy analysis, and field-based examples. Students will be encouraged to critically examine administrative practices, social policies, and organizational structures through interactive learning methods, including seminars, assignments, and project-based learning.

Course Outcomes (COs)

On completion of this course, students will be able to understand the concepts and models of social welfare administration, analyze administrative structures and processes in social welfare organizations, examine social policy frameworks and registration procedures, and apply administrative and management skills in planning, implementation, monitoring, and evaluation of social welfare programmes.

Learning Outcomes

Students will acquire knowledge of social welfare administration concepts, government and voluntary sector structures, social policy and advocacy mechanisms, and administrative processes such as planning, budgeting, and reporting. They will develop skills in organizational management, documentation, project formulation, and evaluation, and demonstrate the ability to function effectively in administrative and managerial roles in social welfare and development organizations.

MSW-DSC-302 SOCIAL ACTION: METHODS AND MOVEMENTS

Topology of the code	Course Duration/LTP			Credits	Max. Marks	Time
	Lectures	Tutorial	Practical
Discipline Specific Core	45 hours (3 hours a week for 15 weeks = 01 semester)	1 hour	0	4	100 Marks Theory 80 marks + Internal Assessment 20 marks	03 Hours

Objectives of the Paper

The objective of this paper is to develop students' theoretical and practical understanding of social action and social movements in social work practice. The course aims to build competencies in planning, implementing, and evaluating social action interventions at micro, meso, and macro levels. It also seeks to enhance understanding of contemporary social movements, professional ethics, and emerging areas of collective social transformation.

Pedagogy of Course Work

The course will be taught through lectures, case studies, movement analyses, group discussions, simulations of social action strategies, field-based assignments, and student presentations on contemporary movements.

Course Outcomes

Upon completion, students will understand theoretical foundations and processes of social action. They will be able to design multi-level intervention strategies, apply professional techniques such as advocacy and digital mobilization, and analyze dynamics and outcomes of social movements. Students will also be able to critically assess emerging social movements and future directions in social action practice.

Learning Outcomes

Students will be able to explain concepts and models of social action, identify stages and strategies of social movements, apply micro–macro intervention methods, assess ethical and risk dimensions of social action, and analyze contemporary and emerging movements in India and globally.

Instructions for the Paper-setter/Examiner and Candidate

Duration of examination for theory paper shall be three hours.

The theory paper shall be of 80 marks and shall comprise nine questions. The candidates shall be required to attempt five questions.

Question No. 1 shall be compulsory, consisting of 10 short answer type questions, spread over the whole syllabus, to be answered in 30 to 35 words and carrying 2 marks each. (10 x 2 = 20 marks)

In addition to Question No. 1, candidates are required to attempt 4 long answer type questions, by selecting one from each of the four units. Each unit shall have two questions of 15 marks each. (4 x 15 =60 marks)

Course Content

Unit I: Theoretical Foundations of Social Action

- Conceptual evolution, philosophical underpinnings, and scope in Indian social work practice
- Process framework: Issue identification, strategy formulation, mobilization, implementation, and evaluation
- Contemporary hybrid models integrating Gandhian principles with structural confrontation approaches

Unit II: Strategic Methods and Professional Practice

- Multi-level intervention strategies: Micro (community), meso (coalition/network), macro (policy advocacy)
- Advanced professional techniques: Digital mobilization, legal interventions (RTI, PIL), therapeutic accompaniment
- Professional ethics, risk assessment, and conflict management in high-stakes social work interventions

Unit III: Dynamics of Social Movements

- Emergence triggers: Socio-economic injustice, policy failures, environmental crises
- Developmental phases: Formation, expansion through alliances, media strategies, and institutionalization
- Critical success determinants: Leadership patterns, resource mobilization, and sustained community engagement

Unit IV: Contemporary Movements and Future Directions

- Emerging Indian movements: Climate displacement, platform economy justice, urban habitat rights
- Intersectional campaigns integrating digital rights, social equity, and gender justice
- Emerging frontiers: Technology ethics, inter-community harmony, regenerative community development

MSW-DSC-303 : SOCIAL WORK AND DISASTER MANAGEMENT

Topology of the code	Course Duration/LTP			Credits	Max. Marks	Time
	Lectures	Tutorial	Practical
Discipline Specific Elective	45 hours (3 hours a week for 15 weeks = 01 semester)	1 hour	0	4	100 Marks Theory 80 marks + Internal Assessment 20 marks	03 Hours

Objectives of the Paper

The objective of this paper is to acquaint students with the concept and nature of disasters, hazards, risks, and vulnerabilities. The course aims to develop an understanding of the types and impacts of disasters on individuals, communities, and society, including their physical, economic, psychosocial, and ecological consequences. It seeks to familiarize students with disaster management processes, including mitigation, preparedness, response, recovery, and rehabilitation. The paper also aims to provide knowledge of national and international disaster management frameworks, institutional mechanisms, and the role of government and non-governmental organizations, with a focus on psychosocial care and mental health interventions for vulnerable groups in post-disaster situations.

Pedagogy of Course Work

The course will be taught through lectures, interactive discussions, case studies, simulations, and student presentations. Field-based learning, review of disaster case reports, assignments, and the use of audio-visual and ICT tools will be incorporated to enhance understanding of disaster management processes and social work interventions.

Course Outcomes

Upon completion of the course, students will be able to understand the concepts of disaster, hazard, risk, and vulnerability and analyze the impacts of disasters on various sectors and groups. They will be able to explain the disaster management cycle and disaster risk reduction strategies, examine national and international disaster management frameworks, and assess the roles of governmental and non-governmental organizations in disaster management. Students will also be able to understand psychosocial and mental health consequences of disasters and apply principles of psychosocial care and counselling for vulnerable populations.

Learning Outcomes

Students will be able to explain different types of disasters and their developmental aspects, describe the phases of the disaster management cycle, and analyze community-based disaster risk management strategies. They will critically review national and international disaster management policies and institutional frameworks and explain the roles of various stakeholders in disaster governance. Students will also be able to identify psychosocial needs of vulnerable groups, apply post-trauma and grief counselling approaches, and understand NDMA guidelines on psychosocial support and mental health services.

Research Based Core (RBC)	45 hours (3 hours a week for 15 weeks = 01 semester)	1 hour	0	4	100 Marks Theory 80 marks + Internal Assessment 20 marks	03 Hours

Objectives of the Paper

The objective of this paper is to equip students with scientific, analytical, and ethical approaches to knowledge building for social work practice. The course aims to develop students' ability to use appropriate research designs, sampling strategies, and data collection tools. It seeks to build competence in conducting social work research for improving practice, policy, and social service delivery, and for evaluating professional interventions and programmes. The paper also aims to strengthen students' skills in communicating empirically based knowledge for evidence-informed social work practice.

Pedagogy of Course Work

The course will be taught through lectures, interactive discussions, demonstrations, research exercises, and student presentations. Practical training in research proposal writing, data collection, data analysis, and report writing, along with assignments and the use of statistical and ICT tools, will be incorporated to enhance research competencies.

Course Outcomes

Upon completion of the course, students will be able to understand the significance and process of social work research and apply appropriate research designs and methodologies. They will be able to select suitable sampling techniques, collect and analyze data, and interpret research findings. Students will also be able to apply basic statistical techniques in social work research and adhere to ethical principles in conducting research. They will be able to prepare research reports and communicate research findings for practice and policy development.

Learning Outcomes

Students will be able to explain the meaning, objectives, and types of social work research and describe the steps in the research process. They will be able to differentiate research designs and apply quantitative and qualitative methods, including participatory action research and impact assessment. Students will be able to select sampling methods, formulate hypotheses, and use primary and secondary data sources with ethical considerations. They will also be able to apply basic statistical concepts, measures of central tendency and dispersion, and correlation techniques in social work research and data interpretation.

MSW-DSE- 305 : POPULATION AND ENVIRONMENT

Topology of the code	Course Duration/LTP			Credits	Max. Marks	Time
	Lectures	Tutorial	Practical
Discipline Specific Core	45 hours (3 hours a week for 15 weeks = 01 semester)	1 hour	0	4	100 Marks Theory 80 marks + Internal Assessment 20 marks	03 Hours

Objective of the Paper:

The objective of this paper is to introduce students to the concept of population, its components and dynamics, and its significance for social and economic development. The course aims to provide an understanding of population characteristics, migration, and demographic processes in India, along with a critical review of population policies and development linkages. It also seeks to develop awareness about the relationship between environment and society, environmental degradation, and its impact on vulnerable groups. The paper further aims to sensitize students to environmental policies, sustainable development approaches, and the role of social movements and civil society in environmental protection.

Pedagogy of Course Work

The course will be taught through lectures, interactive discussions, case studies, student presentations, and assignments. Audio-visual aids, ICT tools, and field-based learning activities will be used to enhance understanding of population and environmental issues.

Course Outcomes

Upon completion of the course, students will be able to understand population dynamics and demographic indicators, analyze population policies and their implications for development, examine the population–environment relationship, assess the impact of environmental degradation on marginalized communities, and evaluate environmental policies, sustainable development strategies, and the role of social movements and voluntary organizations in environmental protection.

Learning Outcomes

Students will be able to explain key demographic concepts and population trends in India, critically review population and family planning policies, describe major environmental issues, analyze the social and gendered impacts of ecological degradation, and discuss sustainable development measures, environmental movements, and the role of judicial and voluntary interventions in environmental conservation.

The course aims to develop an understanding of the changing demography of the elderly population and their contemporary issues within the family and community. It seeks to familiarize students with policies, legislations, and programmes addressing the needs of the elderly and persons with disabilities and to promote a positive perspective on ageing to enhance quality of life. The paper also aims to introduce the concept and experiences of disability, legal provisions for persons with disabilities, and the need for skilled social work interventions for counselling, rehabilitation, and social reintegration.

Pedagogy of Course Work

The course will be taught through lectures, interactive discussions, case studies, student presentations, and assignments. Field-based learning, visits to old age homes and disability institutions, community interaction, and the use of audio-visual and ICT tools will be incorporated to enhance understanding of ageing and disability issues and social work interventions.

Course Outcomes

Upon completion of the course, students will be able to understand concepts, theories, and challenges of ageing and analyze demographic trends of the elderly population. They will be able to explain legislations, policies, and welfare schemes for the elderly and evaluate institutional and non-institutional care services. Students will also be able to understand concepts and types of disability, rights and empowerment frameworks, and apply social work intervention strategies for improving the quality of life of the elderly and persons with disabilities at individual, family, community, and policy levels.

Learning Outcomes

Students will be able to explain the process and theories of ageing, identify needs, health issues, and abuse of the elderly, and analyze family and social concerns related to ageing. They will be able to describe legal provisions, social security schemes, and policies for elderly welfare. Students will explain concepts, causes, and types of disability and evaluate rehabilitation and inclusion strategies and disability rights frameworks. They will also be able to design and apply social work interventions such as retirement planning, family awareness, community-based rehabilitation, advocacy, and policy-level interventions for elderly and persons with disabilities.
